NCTE AUTHOR STRAND SESSIONS

FRIDAY, 9:30–10:45 A.M.

E.01 Adventurous Thinking: Fostering Students' Rights to Read and Write in Secondary ELA Classrooms

ROOM: A-124/125 (GCCC, MAIN LEVEL)

Drawing from the work of high school teachers across the country, Adventurous Thinking illustrates how advocating for students' rights to read and write can be revolutionary work. Ours is a conflicted time: the #BlackLivesMatter and #MeToo movements, for instance, run parallel with increasingly hostile attitudes toward immigrants and prescriptive K–12 curricula, including calls to censor texts. Teachers who fight to give their students the tools and opportunities to read about and write on topics of their choice and express ideas that may be controversial are, in editor Mollie V. Blackburn's words, "revolutionary artists, and their teaching is revolutionary art."

Presenters: Mollie Blackburn, The Ohio State University
Lane Vanderhule, Hilliard Davidson High School

Principles
in Practice

FRIDAY, 9:30–10:45 A.M.

E.02 Empowering Students' Knowledge of Vocabulary: Learning How Language Works, Grades 3–5

ROOM: EDNA BOIES HOPKINS (HILTON 401, LOBBY LEVEL)

Learn how to help upper elementary students develop a deeper understanding of how the English language works, enrich their vocabularies, and improve their reading and writing skills. With examples drawn from poetry and prose, veteran educators Fresch and Harrison offer fun, practical ideas for teaching about similes, metaphors, idioms, shades of meaning, word origins, and more!

Presenter: Mary Jo Fresch, The Ohio State University

Tradebook Author/Illustrator: David L. Harrison, Holiday House, "Engaging Students in Reading with Partner Poems"

NCTE AUTHOR STRAND SESSIONS

FRIDAY, 3:30–4:45 P.M.

I.01 Displacing and Disrupting: Workshopping the Canon for Democracy and Justice

ROOM: B-240–242 (GCCC, UPPER LEVEL)

How can we use our curriculum and teaching to be a force for democracy and justice? This presentation will share how to displace and disrupt canonical texts with multiple genres within a critical reading and writing workshop structure. Join us as we learn how to workshop the canon for democracy and justice.

Presenter: Mary Styslinger, University of South Carolina

FRIDAY, 3:30–4:45 P.M.

I.02 Literacies before Technologies: Making Digital Tools Matter for Middle Grades Learners

ROOM: A-222/223 (GCCC, UPPER LEVEL)

Based on a year-long collaboration, our work describes the life of a ninth-grade English classroom amidst the COVID-19 pandemic, along with the many changes that remote learning necessitated. In this session, we will share specific lesson ideas and examples of student work to explore applications of NCTE's Beliefs for Integrating Technology into the English Language Arts Classroom position statement. In particular we will focus on how remote technologies can enhance brick-and-mortar ELA instruction, as well as technologies for close and critical reading for literary analysis, and recommendations for teaching writing to inform and argue.

Presenters: Cathy Fleischer, Professor Emerita, Eastern Michigan University

Troy Hicks, Central Michigan University

Jill Runstrom, Ann Arbor Skyline High School

Principles
in Practice

SATURDAY, 8:15–9:30 A.M.

J.01 Critical Literacy Work with Comics and Graphic Novels

ROOM: KOJO KAMAU JUNIOR BALLROOM A (HILTON 402, LEVEL 4)

Explore ideas about the intersections of identity and critical awareness that can be considered through comics and graphic novels. This work connects with a forthcoming NCTE publication and draws from sixteen years of experience in education, from middle grades to university to high school. Particular authors and titles are highlighted.

Presenter: Jason DeHart, Wilkes Central High School
